The Tough Armor case from Spigen is the company's new cover. Its two-part construction is made of abrasion-resistant thermoplastic and a polycarbonate reinforcing frame. Inside the cover there is a filling in the form of technological foam, which provides an additional layer of protection against impacts or falling of the device. The housing with a foot allows you to easily watch what is happening on the phone display without having to hold it. The case is perfectly fitted and does not limit the possibility of wireless charging. The slightly raised form of the housing around the camera and screen protects it from scratches by lifting the phone just above a flat surface. It has covers for buttons and cutouts for ports. Tough Armor is a case that has been subjected to fitness tests for falls from a height of up to 1.2 m, 26 times, thus obtaining the American military certificate MIL-STD 810G-516.6.
